

Access and distribute structured investments with Futura

Assess the market, analyse and distribute a range of third-party structured products

Have you stopped looking for an automated and easy to use solution?

From the wealth team of a retail bank to a private banking institution, a family office or an asset manager, the structured investments shall be easy to access, analyse and execute.

Clients want to access a wider range of investment propositions.

In a persistently low interest rate environment, investors are seeking more yield and better diversification. With the majority of structured investments performing well in recent years, they're considered one of the best alternatives.

Access and distribution of structured investments such as autocallable notes or participation notes must be straightforward, resource free and cost-effective so providers can easily offer them to all customers.

Unfortunately, the process is still largely manual and time-consuming.
